Arlington Parks Pokémon Guide

Children and adults alike are flocking to Arlington parks in an attempt to catch 'em all. Pokémon Go is an app where players visit different physical locations to collect in-game items, Pokémon, and battle for control of virtual gyms. Arlington Parks and Recreation has compiled a list of the best places to visit PokéStops to stock up on items or battle it out at various city parks.

- 1. River Legacy – Pack some water because you could spend quite a while visiting the 12 PokéStops and 4 Gyms at River Legacy Parks. PokéStops are spread across the 1,031 acre park, so a bike or skateboard would definitely come in handy. Expect to find many types of Pokémon on the trails that span the park and run next to the river. The PokéStops here are often lured by other players to attract more Pokémon, especially on the weekends.
- 2. Veterans Park – Veterans Park is the perfect place to pick up some items on the way home or spend the afternoon catching Pokémon. The 103 acre park has 16 PokéStops that are frequently lured by other players (even on weekdays) and has two Gyms. Stops and Gyms are close together and can be reasonably reached by foot.
- 3. Richard Greene Linear Park – View some spectacular art while stocking up on Pokéballs and other items. This park features numerous sculptures along the walking path from various artists from around the country. If you're really into outdoor art, this is the park for you. In fact, many of these sculptures are available for purchase. (Click here for purchasing information). Richard Greene has 11 PokéStops that are scattered across its 41 acres of land and is close to Globe Life Park, AT&T Stadium, and other prime Pokémon locations.
- 4. Crystal Canyon Natural Area – You're sure to find rock and grass Pokémon types at the Crystal Canyon Natural Area. A lesser known hunting ground to the average Pokémon Go player, this area is home to five pokestops and one gym.
- 5. Vandergriff Park – Another great location to stop by and stock up! Vandergriff park offers 84 acres of pure Pokémon bliss. The park features 8 PokéStops and 3 Gyms all within walking distance from one another.

Sonora Park Pond

II. Originated by:

Larry Hoover, Streets and Parks Supervisor

III. Summary:

Recently Blue-Green Algae infected our pond at Sonora Park and a total loss of 2,991 fish. WE are working with the Texas Parks and Wildlife to restock our pond, however since this is a state-wide issue we don't have an exact date for the restock yet. Please visit the Texas Parks and Wildlife website to learn more about this Blue-Green Algae

Blue-green algae

Blue-green algae are also called cyanobacteria because they are biologically similar to bacteria in many ways. As single cells, large colonies and filaments, blue-green algae grow in a wide variety of conditions and can become dominant in nutrient-rich water bodies. One characteristic of these cyanobacteria is their ability to form blooms so thick it appears that blue-green paint covers the surface of the water.

Two forms found in Texas are known to produce substances which cause taste and odor problems in water supplies. In some cases, blue-green algae, particularly Anabaena and Microcystis (both found in Texas), can produce toxins that are poisonous to fish and wildlife that drink water contaminated with the toxins. Fish kills have occurred in private stock ponds as a result of blue-green algal blooms and there have been a few reports of livestock dying from drinking water contaminated with blue-green toxins. In addition to toxicity to fish and wildlife, there are documented cases of blue-green algal toxins harming humans in other parts of the world through the consumption of poorly treated waters. Awareness is growing of the need to ensure blue-green algal toxins do not pass through water treatment plants without being adequately removed.
